Why Indonesia

Indonesia is considered as "Asia's next big opportunity," as its fast-growing economy and favourable demographics. Over 60 per cent of the population is between 20-65, which gives the country a large working population and consumer base.

Recently, a business model that is growing in Indonesia is one not limited to contracts or consignment manufacturing plans. Instead, development has been focused on a capital-intensive business model that does not rely solely on Indonesian labour in some industries such as consumer goods, cosmetics, automotive and components. Today many plans involve joint ventures with local representation in Indonesia in making business decisions such as investments, determining target markets, making capital expenditures, financing and many more.

- Sound Economy

Indonesia is an emerging global powerhouse in Asia. With the GDP reached to US$870 billion in 2014, Indonesia is the largest economy in Southeast Asia.

- Political Stability

Underlying Indonesia's vibrant economy is political stability. Since emerging from decades of autocratic rule 17 years ago, Indonesia has succeeded in maintaining political stability in a young democratic country.

- Investment Climate

Following Indonesia's economic resilience during and after the global financial crisis, the Government will continue to reform the investment climate to make Indonesia a safe and attractive investment destination.

- Natural Resources

Indonesia abounds with natural resources extractions from being a major producer of liquefied natural gas and expansion of mining industry. Petroleum and minerals are its major exports besides palm oil.

- Demographics

Indonesia is undergoing a major structural shift namely demographic bonus. The percentage of productive age group in 2025-2035 would dominate the population.

- Domestic Market

As the 4th most populous country in the world, more than 53% of the people live in urban areas with a modern lifestyle and increasing purchasing power.

- Global Influence

Indonesia is playing a more dominant role in global affairs. It is Southeast Asia's only member of the G-20 and an active voice for the developing world's concerns.

- Government Measures to Motivate or Restrict FDI

Incentives to investment are accessible to all investors, national and foreign. More specifically, these are reductions of duties on imports and equipment goods and additional incentives for export investors and investments made in certain regions.

In 2006, the government launched a programme for the improvement of the investment climate: bill on investment, drawing up of a new negative list applicable on investments, drastic reduction of the time required for the creation of a company, acceleration of the re-examination process of local regulations likely to harm the enterprising spirit, as well as rationalisation of customs procedures and improvement of customs regulations. A privatisation programme mainly concerning key sectors such as transport and finance, which was initiated in 1998, is regularly updated.
